

1. A: Hi diga!

B: Hello.

A: Do you want to grab a dinner time? (letter "u" pronounces like "you"; mixed letters "DNA" pronounces like "dinner")

B: like a date ("D8" means letter "D" + "eight", that pronounces like "date")

A: Yes, why not? ("Y" pronounces like "why")

B: Sure, when?

A: I don't know, maybe this weekend? (All of this are famous short variants of written words and phrases)

B: I can call you tomorrow ("here", "morrow" - "two" + m@rrow = tomorrow, that means the following day)

A: Great, I will message you later (Two of used constructions - GR8 and L8R - are based on pronounce letter "eight")

B: Okay, bye.

2. 1. We haven't got any money. (C)
2. Let's go watch the game, shall we? (B)
3. I know he didn't thank you, but he should have done so (A)
4. This house is quite old. It was built in 1910. (B)
5. Marcy usually arrives late. (A)
6. The room was empty. There was nobody there. (D)
7. If I were rich, I would buy a house on the beach.
(B)
8. When she arrived, he had ~~also~~ already left. (C)
9. Have you sent that letter to Mr. Taylor?
Yes, I've already done that. (C)
10. He has never been to America. (B)

3. 1. B "Harry saw the boys' mother waving and their sister, half laughing, half crying, running to keep up with the train until it gathered too much speed, then she fell back and waved"

2. C "Harry felt a great leap of excitement"

3. A "< Anyone sitting there? > he asked, pointing at the seat opposite Harry. < Everywhere else is full >"

4. A "Harry saw he still had a black mark on his nose"

5. B "< Oh - well, I thought it might be one of Fred and George's jokes, > said Ron"

4. The best place I've ever been to

Travelling is definitely important to people and it is also one of the most exciting ways to spend some time. Often the best place in the whole life is your grandmother's house, where the atmosphere of comfort reigns and the scent of fresh pastry soars in the air, or maybe it is Sochi Mezhnaya Polyana with its magnificent scenery and risky activities. Nevertheless, sometimes a person gets a ticket to an incredible country of childhood, whose name is Artek.

Moreover, I was lucky to get there. Despite my relative acquaintance with the history, culture and nature of the Crimean peninsula, Artek literally made me dive deeper into them and see all the hidden details and hints.

In addition to the above, this camp helps to feel the atmosphere of friendly rivalry, to participate in various competitions, events and concerts to show all of your own skills. For example, I was trained under the programme of Dmitry Petrov, "Polyglot", which greatly helped to improve my knowledge of English language and to learn the basics of Spanish language.

Now wonder people say that Artek is a place of fulfillment of desires. It was there I met very kind and sincere people, found many new friends.

In conclusion, I want to say that everyone has their favourite place, but I consider it is much more pleasant to enjoy the experiences of the native land and literally to live life to the fullest.