3. Read the extract from "Harry Potter and the Sorcerer's stone" by J. Rowling and answer the questions:

The train began to move. Harry saw the boys' mother waving and their sister, half laughing, half crying, running to keep up with the train until it gathered too much speed, then she fell back and waved.

Harry watched the girl and her mother disappear as the train rounded the corner. Houses flashed past the window. Harry felt a great leap of excitement. He didn't know what he was going to but it had to be better than what he was leaving behind.

The door of the compartment slid open and the youngest redheaded boy came in.

"Anyone sitting there?" he asked, pointing at the seat opposite Harry. "Everywhere else is full."

Harry shook his head and the boy sat down. He glanced at Harry and then looked quickly out of the window, pretending he hadn't looked. Harry saw he still had a black mark on his nose.

"Hey, Ron." The twins were back. "Listen, we're going down the middle of the train -- Lee Jordan's got a giant tarantula down there."

"Right," mumbled Ron.

"Harry," said the other twin, "did we introduce ourselves? Fred and George Weasley. And this is Ron, our brother. See you later, then."

"Bye," said Harry and Ron. The twins slid the compartment door shut behind them.

"Are you really Harry Potter?" Ron blurted out.

Harry nodded.

"Oh -well, I thought it might be one of Fred and George's jokes," said Ron. "And have you really got -- you know..."

4. Write an essay (100-250 words) answering the following question:
 The best place I've ever been to.

I have been to a lot of places. Various seashores, mountains, forests etc. All of them were pretty, but places with small numbers of people were the best. I don't like people. I'm not a misanthrope though, I just heavily despise huge crowds of people. This is the reason why I wouldn't want to visit any of these "tourist destination" spots such as famous monuments or other places where tourists gather like moths near a light bulb.

With mindset like this, what place would be the most enjoyable and memorable for me? A small lake near a beautiful waterfall. It was such a pretty place. There were no human beings except me and my parents, so it was peaceful and quiet. This waterfall was located in the deep forest near the mountains.

What a hike it was! A hard path to reach peace and tranquility by embracing the forest. It has left the ~~grea~~ brightest memories of all my trips.
